

This I Believe

'If you continue to dream, if you never abandon your dream, it will come true in the end.'" Kim Junsu

To continue to dream, we should first have a dream we can hold onto. For me, it was difficult. Ever since I was a child, I did not dare to dream. I had no confidence in myself. However now, things have changed. I built up my confidence and came up with a dream, to stand on stage to sing and dance.

'For dreams to come true, it requires diligence. Believing is the most important thing' Jung Yunho

How do we actually reach our dreams? We have to work hard for it and believe in ourselves. No matter what obstacles stand in our way, we must not be afraid them.

There was once a boy who dreamt of being a star. He was dumped by his parents and was adopted by a poor family. Despite all the difficulties he had as a child, he had a dream and he was going to do all he can to achieve it. 'The stage is where I belong,' he once said. His friends made fun of him, saying he did not have a talent to sing, but that did not stop him. He practiced everyday, every night, no matter how tired he was. When he reached sixteen, he left his hometown and travelled to Seoul for an audition on his own. He had little money and was still a minor. He got into the company but needed money to pay for his living expenses as well as his trainings. Hence, he started to juggle between trainings and a few jobs. But now, he has become one of Asia's top stars, people look up to him and respect him for what he does. He is Kim Jaejoong from DBSK/JYJ.

I told myself that if I want to dream, I have to work as hard, if not harder than anybody. There are many reasons as to why one may not reach his dreams and one of them includes the doubting of oneself. That is my biggest flaw. What I want to do is not something whereby one can just study hard and do well for, it requires a lot of training, a lot of self-discipline and talent. Sometimes, I worry that I do not have the talent, either because I failed an audition or because some of my friends say I cannot sing. When I'm in doubt, the only way to keep myself going is to keep telling myself that all those stars went through what I did as well, they too had to go for countless auditions before they got accepted. Everytime I managed to convince myself, I will become more determined to live my dreams and at the same time, i will also be angry with myself-for doubting myself in the first place.

So now, you tell me, do you have a dream that you would really want? If the answer is yes, then go for it.
